Pa. Job-Hungry, Declares Kennedy; Tomatoes Won't Stop Me, Nixon Vows

Cold Improves But His Voice Still Hoarse

ABOARD NIXON TRAIN IN ILLINOIS, UPI — Vice President Richard M. Nixon, rasping and coughing in an early morning Illinois fog, started a day of whistle-stopping with a hoarse vow that tomatoes and eggs would not reduce the velocity of his campaign against Sen. John F. Kennedy.

The vice president, fighting laryngitis and a cold, was the target of tomatoes and eggs in Michigan Thursday, and the series of incidents remained on his mind as he opened an intensive day of campaigning in Illinois.

One of the incidents was discovery of a metal canister tied to a rail ahead of the Nixon train in Indiana. It was discovered before the Nixon train reached the site.

He told a crowd of several thousand in the industrial city of Danville at 9 a.m. EDT "they threw tomatoes and eggs at me yesterday, and they're not going to stop me, either."

With a grin, he looked down.

Good Evening!

Weatherman mixed up.

Always switching signals. Rain due yesterday coming today and chances are the weekend will turn Democratic.

An interesting weekend at that, what with football games all over the place and Senator Kennedy speaking at the Shopping Center Sunday. It should keep you on your toes.

Football? Read 'em and weep: Navy over Notre Dame, Syracuse over Pitt, Penn over Harvard, Penn State over West Virginia and we just don't see how it can be any other way.

We note that Vice President Nixon promises that if he's elected he'll make it a point to visit all of the Red satellite countries to reaffirm "our trust in their deliverance."

You know, if both Nixon and Kennedy were to keep all of the promises they've made during the past three months, either or both of 'em would have to be in the White House for the next 20 years. The Constitution just doesn't allow that any more.

Another reminder: October on the far down-side.

Daylight Saving Time ends Sunday morning, Halloween goblins arrive Monday night, and then we start feeling the cool November breezes for sure. Now if we could just get all of the leaves dropping at once.

Old-time prognosticators sure the winter will be a long, heavy one.

We disagree on the strength of watching a couple of dogs who live better than people shedding their coats like everything. They don't do that when they figure they'll be romping around in snowdrifts.

Every high school youngster goes through the stage where about the only thing you can count on is his appetite.

A good way of getting the slant on people is by looking down your nose at them.

You'd better slow down when you have so much work on your mind you can't keep your mind on your work.

Take it easy with the driving.

Expressway Destination Still Mystery

By TOM TINDALL
Courier-Times Staff Writer

We set out early yesterday to see if we couldn't find out the proposed route of the Delaware Expressway, construction of the first section of which started last spring at Route 13 near Newportville Road in Bensalem Township. Several hours and about 40 phone calls later we decided we were not going to find out, because nobody knows.

It seemed remarkable, but it is apparently true that the land over which this $2,000,000-a-mile superhighway will pass just hasn't been picked yet. This despite the fact that 2.8 miles of the road already are under construction, going, it looks like, from nowhere to nowhere else.

Actually, of course, the first section route is well laid out, even dug up, as a matter of fact, but where the road will go in a southerly direction from the Bensalem end of the link or northerly from the Route 413 end in Bristol Township nobody in all officialdom can say.

Why not?

"Because studies are still being made."

You would think that the Highway Department which is spending $2,000,000 per mile would know where it is going before it ever left home.

Bristol Township officials, concerned over the tremendous economic effect the new highway must of necessity have on their bailiwick, also have been trying, not just for hours, but for more than a year, to learn the route of the road. They could have saved their breath.

James Darrah, who represents Township Engineer William Spencer Erwin, said that results of his persistent inquiries to the Philadelphia office of John Wolf, assistant chief engineer of the Pennsylvania department of highways, have been less than rewarding. Wolf is in charge of the express-

Opens 4-Day Tour Seeking Our 32 Votes

WITH KENNEDY IN PENNSYLVANIA, UPI — Sen. John F. Kennedy said on his campaign swing through Pennsylvania today that Vice President Richard M. Nixon would not dare use his "never had it so good" slogan in the job hungry Keystone State.

Kennedy also hurled back at the vice president the accusations Nixon has been using against him in the campaign. He said it is Nixon, not he, who is "downgrading America" and "selling America short."

He played on the unemployment issue in his bid for Pennsylvania's 32 electoral votes.

Speaks To 4,000

Kennedy told some 4,000 persons at Moravian College in Bethlehem the U.S. is "strong in production but we cannot possibly afford to have our facilities unused."

He had told an earlier breakfast in Bethlehem, where he spent the night, "I'm willing to spend time talking about Quemoy and Matsu and all the rest, but I also want to know what's going to happen to Pennsylvania and the United States."

He warned that "if we drift here at home, all the bold words and fingers pointed won't make up for lack of strength in the United States."

He cited needs in education, help for the aging, medical care, housing and natural resources.

In adjoining Allentown, a crowd estimated at more than 50,000 by Police Chief Walter C. Wickert, welcomed Kennedy and almost filled Center Square.

Vice President Nixon, here a few days ago, brought out an estimated 100,000 persons in Allentown before he spoke to a smaller indoor group at Muhlenberg College.

There were plenty of Nixon signs among the spectators in Allentown, but they were heavily outnumbered by the Kennedy for

Convicted Abortionist

Probation Violation Jails Bristol Woman

A Bristol woman and a Camden man who failed to live up to their probation terms were given indefinite state reformatory terms yesterday by Burlington County Judge W. Thomas McGinnis when they appeared before him in County Court at Mount Holly.

Mrs. Nella Windt, 43, of 803 Bristol Terrace Court, who was placed on two years probation last year after pleading guilty to two abortion counts, was committed to the Clinton Reformatory for Women and Raymond Britton, 21, of 438 Haddon Ave., Camden, who received three years probation four years ago following a Maple Shade burglary, was remanded to Bordentown Reformatory.

Prosecutor Martin J. Queenan said the County Probation Officer had recommended action be taken on the two after they violated terms of their probation.

Mrs. Windt was fined $1,000, placed on probation for two years and received a suspended reformatory sentence when she appeared before Judge McGinnis on May 7, 1959, after pleading no defense to abortion charges in Riverside Township on July 11 and in Westampton Township on July 18 the previous year.

Chief Held Up On 2 Raids, Lt. Testifies

Bristol Township Police Lieutenant Thomas G. Stewart last night told the Township civil service commission that on at least two occasions he had been refused permission by ousted Chief of Police John R. Stewart to conduct raids on illicit liquor operations.

The lieutenant was the first of three officers who testified last night during the third hearing in the ex-chief's appeal for reinstatement to his job. The other two witnesses were Ptl. William Brooke and Aaron Keiton.

Lt. Stewart testified under questioning by Township Solicitor William J. Carlin that on one occasion he had told the chief by telephone that alcoholic beverages were being sold in Bristol Terrace Two on Sunday and asked the chief what to do about it. The chief told him he couldn't do anything about it "because you can't raid on Sunday," the lieutenant said.

Call Them Up

The second liquor violation, according to the lieutenant, took place at a tavern on Beaver Dam Road. He said he telephoned the chief to tell him about it and was told by the chief to "call them up (the tavern operators) and ask them what they're doing."

The lieutenant, who was a sergeant at the time of the alleged liquor violations, told the commission that it was the practice in the police department always to ask the chief's permission before making raids. He admitted under cross-examination, however, that he wasn't sure there ever was a departmental order making it mandatory to do so. He said it was "just an understanding" among the policemen.

Lt. Stewart also testified that the chief had pitted "man against man" in the police department, contributing to low morale among the officers.

"Disabled" Patrolman

The trial of four men charged with stealing products of Kemline, Inc., was continued yesterday after two days of testimony when it was learned that a Commonwealth witness, a truck driver, was out of the state and cannot appear.

The case was continued to another term of court by President Judge John P. Fullam. The defendants are Howard Myers, 34, Court B, Bristol Terrace 2; Robert Wargo, 2025 Wilson Ave., Bristol, and Joseph Accardi, 122 Hazel Ave., Langhorne.

The jury heard testimony by Stephen P. Midouhas, president of the Edgely manufacturing firm; by Gustav A. Kaechlin, Edgely, a truck driver who said he delivered some packages from the plant from Wargo to Accardi; by John Rice, who was a Bristol Township detective, and by Sgt. Joseph Kershaw and Patrolman Howard Bromley, of Lower Southampton Township Police, who worked in the plant as undercover agents.

Plans Drawn For Kennedy

A crowd of 25,000 people will hear Senator John F. Kennedy's major campaign speech in Levittown Sunday, John C. Mulligan, county Democratic chairman, predicted today.

Kennedy is expected to arrive at the speaker's platform in front of Pomeroy's Department Store in the Levittown Shopping Center at 1:30 p.m. Mulligan said, "Every detail is being ironed out to make the presidential candidate's visit here a memorable one. It will be the greatest day in the Bucks County Democratic Party's history."

Meanwhile, county Republican officials urged authorities to be on their guard against the distribution of anti-Catholic literature during the Senator's visit.

Frederick E. Ziegler, GOP county committee chairman, said it has been brought to his attention that hate literature has been distributed in other parts of the country visited by the presidential candidates.

Ziegler cautioned, "It may very well be that these persons or groups may attempt to distribute this type of literature Sunday. I suggest authorities make their names public so that citizens will really know who is behind this insidious operation."

2 Croydon Men Held In Policeman Assault

Two Croydon men and their Philadelphia companion were arrested in Trenton yesterday and charged with assault after they allegedly attacked a Trenton policeman.

According to authorities, Sgt. Frank Dombroski, a one-time Olympic weightlifting candidate, reported that three men attacked him after they forced his car to stop on Cass St. near the John Fitch Way.

Dombroski said two of the men held him while the third hit him. Another police car summoned to the scene apprehended the three men a few minutes later. Dombroski was treated for bruises behind his left ear at St. Francis Hospital and released.

George Litz, 50, of Croydon, his son, Joseph, 21, same address, and William H. Geddon, of Philadelphia, they were charged with assault and battery and released on $400 bail.

Police said the three men told them they stopped Dombroski's car because he had hit their bumper on John Fitch Way. Dombroski said the trio followed and then stopped him.

Kennedy Gains 2nd Day

Nixon Lead Cut To Only One Vote

A furious two-day rally of Democratic backers of John F. Kennedy has left the Massachusetts Senator trailing Vice President Richard Nixon by a single vote after this morning's tabulation of post card ballots on the Courier-Times' Presidential Election Poll.

Kennedy cut Nixon's lead by 27 votes yesterday. He slashed it again this morning when he reached 97 votes to Nixon's 71. The totals now are 752 for the Vice President and 751 for the Senator.

There will be no totals in tomorrow's edition of the Courier-Times, as there were none last Saturday, since the weekend mail arrives after the paper goes to press.

Still to be recorded is the effect Kennedy's Sunday's appearance in the Levittown Shopping Center will have on the voting.

Nickel Fee Increases Traffic On All Bridges

The Delaware Joint Bridge Commission's solution to increase traffic across its Trenton-Morrisville toll bridge has worked.

Traffic has increased. It has also increased across those free bridges the commission was hoping to relieve when it cut the price of commutation tickets at the toll bridge to a nickel each.

According to a report read before the commission yesterday, there has been an increase of commutation traffic across the toll bridge of 12.73 per cent since July 18, accompanied by a 12.30 per cent decrease in revenues. At the same time traffic on the Lower Trenton Bridge and the Calhoun Street Bridge has also become heavier.

William R. Johnson, executive director of the commission, reported, "toll bridge traffic during September, 1959, numbered 155,164 vehicles as compared to September, 1960, when 228,145 autos used the span. This is a rise of 47.03 per cent."

During the same period 13,493 more cars used the Lower Trenton Bridge and 13,213 more the Calhoun Street Bridge. Johnson pointed out that the rise was smaller than for a corresponding period in previous years.

The report disclosed that 17,632 fewer cars used the free bridges with the loss in traffic occurring at the Yardley-Wilburtha and Washington Crossing bridges.

Democrats Again Rap Williams

Assemblyman Alan D. Williams Jr., was charged today by Democratic County Chairman John C. Mulligan "with joining together with Edward Boyer and the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association wings of the party in a pact behind locked and guarded doors to work together keeping their mouths shut about the Republican scandals and to 'bribe' through another election by 'hood-winking' the voters of Bucks County."

Mulligan asked Williams "to come clean with the voters of Bucks County and stop his double-talking." He accused Williams of being "the worst sort of a political opportunist, and all-things to all - people exponent, who has crusaded as a good - government legislator at a time when he is a part and parcel of the discredited Republican machine."

"The people of Bucks County should not be misled by Williams' adroit attempt to hide the true situation by name calling of the Democrats," Mulligan said.

Young Republicans

"The fact remains that he admits receiving $900 in cash from Republican Commissioner Ed Boyer for his abortive campaign to head the Young Republicans plus an unspecified amount from an 'unnamed' Lower Bucks firm to make up the deficit in his lavish spending attempt to advance his political fortunes."

"The fact remains that despite Williams' disclaimers he spent lavishly in Pittsburgh, our investigation shows that he spent over $500 for lavish hotel quarters for entertaining in a two day period and cashed checks in an amount in excess of $900. If this isn't lavish spending have Mr. Williams explain it."

"The fact further remains," Mulligan declared, "that Williams has campaigned against the so-called PMA Wing of the Republican party to bring 'good - government' to Bucks County, yet he has never once denied the charges of Ed Boyer that it was Williams who insisted that Boyer form the 'Unholy Alliance' with the PMA Wing to insure victory in the last election."

Leave of Absence

"The fact further remains that he and Boyer have been tied together head to foot in the discredited Republican leadership. Despite the belated split - action of the Republican Executive Committee to ask Boyer to take a leave of absence, Williams has never once publicly condemned the Boyer tactics. Williams says he led the action to ask Boyer to take this leave. But according to Boyer, Williams law-partner says there is no such procedure authorized. This double - talking is just further evidence of this 'Unholy Alliance' to 'hoodwink' the voters of Bucks County. Just as the voters refused to be 'hoodwinked' in the Ferris - Carver affair, they'll see through this too," Mulligan stated.

"Williams has shown himself to stand for one thing and that is the advancement of Al Williams at all costs. His mask of good-government has been torn from his face this Halloween as he's willing to join with PMA, Boyer or anyone to keep him in office," Mulligan concluded.

Careless Rifleman Gets 3 to 32 Months

Brewington pleaded guilty, after a jury trial was started, before Judge Edwin H. Satterthwaite. He was charged with shooting James Payne, Jr., 19, of 229 Buckley St. with a .22-caliber rifle.

Martin Luther King, Sr. Switches To Kennedy

ATLANTA (UPI)—The Rev. Martin Luther King Sr., announced Thursday night he will vote for Democratic hopeful Sen. John F. Kennedy because the senator expressed sympathy to the family during the imprisonment of King's son. He said he had planned to vote against Kennedy because of the senator's religion.

The elder King made the announcement at a "thanksgiving prayer service" after the younger King was released from the Georgia state prison at Reidsville. The Kings are co-pastors of Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta.

The younger King, a national integration leader, was jailed Wednesday morning in Decatur, Ga., after being sentenced to four months in the state prison for violation of a probated 12 month sentence set against him last May for driving without a valid driver's license. He was accused of violating the probation when he was arrested last week during sit-ins at Atlanta lunch counters.

ency" and "low morale" in the department.

The lieutenant said the chief had "apparently disliked" Ptl. James Missanelli. He said he was ordered to make Missanelli ride alone in a patrol car so that the patrolman would "get jammed up" (in trouble).

Missanelli testified at the first hearing in the ex-chief's appeal that the chief had called him a "dago" and a "wop" during an argument in 1959.

No Grudge

John Justus Bodley, John R. Stewart's attorney, drew from Lt. Stewart the admission that "I don't like the chief." The lieutenant maintained, however, that "I don't hold any grudge against him."

In testimony from Ptl. Brooke, who has been on the police force since 1956, the township solicitor brought forth the statement that Brooke had once been "pressured" to return a state motor vehicle inspection sticker which he had removed from what he called an "unsafe" truck. The truck was owned by the Penn Sanitation Corp. and had been involved in an accident.

Brooke testified that after he had removed the sticker he was approached by a detective of the department's criminal investigation division and told "the chief wants the sticker back on the truck."

Sticker Replaced

Brooke had impounded the vehicle, he testified, because he had had it inspected and found it to have faulty brakes and several other mechanical defects. The truck was released from impoundment, Brooke said, "without my orders."

Brooke also testified that in the "baseball bat murder" in Bristol Terrace in 1958 the chief had ordered him to quit his investigation. The victim in the incident had been taken, still alive, to the hospital and his attacker had been arrested. The officer claimed, however, that his investigation was not complete when he was taken off the case.

Brooke said the chief told him, "You've got one nigger in jail and one nigger in the hospital. What more do you want?"

Murder Charge Lost

The victim of the attack died later and his attacker was convicted of manslaughter.

Carlin implied that if Brooke had been allowed to continue his investigation the conviction in the case might have been for murder.

Bodley drew from Brooke the admission that he had filed no official complaint about the chief's actions in the killing.

Called Off Abortion Case

In his testimony, Ptl. Kelton, a township policeman since 1956, said he was reprimanded by the chief for "wasting time" in the investigation of an abortion case because the illegal operation had taken place in Atlantic City.

The woman, however, was being treated for the after-effects at Lower Bucks County Hospital, Kelton said, and he wanted to get whatever information he could and pass it on to the Atlantic City police as an act of "good public relations."

The officer testified that the chief had refused him permission to contact the New Jersey authorities. He admitted under cross-examination that the chief had granted him permission later the same day, however.

Last night's three-hour session in the Benjamin Franklin Junior High School cafeteria ended at 10:30, with no date being set for the next hearing.

Woman, 25, 'Blacks Out,' Five Killed

CHICAGO (UPI)—Bette Gillespie, 25, said today she blacked out just before her car touched off a rush-hour accident in the Loop which killed five persons and injured three others.

Miss Gillespie, daughter of a former alderman, said she was trying to stop for a red light Thursday night when "I blacked out and woke up in the hospital."

Witnesses said her car leaped a curb and struck two persons, then smashed into a truck. The impact sent the truck's trailer careening into another car which hurtled into a group of pedestrians on another corner and then plowed into a parking lot.

The dead were identified as Corby Alward, 50, La Grange, Ill.; Carl Matre, 61, Des Plaines, Ill.; Leslie Miles, 63, West Chicago, Ill.; Carl Berggren, 38, Glen Ellyn, Ill.; and Harold Murphy, 40, Glen Ellyn.

Walter Christenson, 40, driver of the truck, said "I heard a crash and heard someone shouting 'Get out of the way!' Then I stopped and got out of the truck and saw what happened."

The driver of the second auto, Romie Gilkey, 42, of Chicago, was seriously injured and unable to be questioned by police. Gilkey's auto finally came to a stop in a parking lot.

Negotiations Collapse For Fifth TV Debate

WITH KENNEDY IN PENNSYLVANIA (UPI)—Negotiations for a fifth television debate between Sen. John F. Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon collapsed in a "no agreement" stalemate today.

The Kennedy campaign party announced that senator's representative in negotiations for a final TV debate had been "unable to get a definitive answer from the Republican presidential candidate" on time and place.

J. Leonard Reinsch charged in a telegram to the four networks that apparently Nixon "was not acting in good faith in his acceptance of the fifth debate" set forth in a Sunday telegram.

persistent people, who flooded the city square with yellow confetti and who justly cheered the Democratic candidate as he emphasized again his theme that the Republicans have failed to build America's economic strength while its prestige has slumped abroad.

One enthusiastic frozen food producer tossed a package of steaks into Kennedy's convertible as the motorcade moved into Allentown. Kennedy had a hoarse voice, apparently from his grueling Tuesday when he delivered 21 speeches in suburban Chicago area and from Thursday's whirlwind swing through four of New York City's five boroughs.

Kennedy had to stop to sip water during his speech at Moravian College to ease his hoarseness. His voice sounded better at Allentown, despite the fact that he was speaking outdoors on a raw, overcast day.

GOP Has 44,075 Edge In Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG (UPI)—Democrats today were within striking distance of erasing the traditional Republican registration lead in Pennsylvania.

Official returns from 66 counties gave the Republicans a slim 44,075 edge, with enrollments of 2,751,636 compared to the Democrats 2,707,561. Total registration, including splinter parties and independents, are 5,536,378.

Lackawanna County, the only county unreported, is heavily Democratic and had a registration margin of 49,554 for the party in the April 26 primary.

Women's Demo Club Hears

Talk By Hock

Bucks County's Democratic Women's Club was host recently to Donald Hock, former Mayor of Allentown and now candidate for Congress.

Other prominent guests included James J. A. Gallagher, incumbent Assemblyman and candidate for re-election; John Mulligan, Bucks County Democratic Committee Chairman, and Adolph Andrews, Bucks County Commissioner.

Mrs. Dolores Tull was hostess for the evening, assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Kernzer, chairman of the women's club. A group of 50 women was present to hear Hock, who discussed several issues of the campaign. He urged the election of a Democratic congress, a spokesman said.

"Every issue that counts is an issue created by Democrats — such as education, crises, medical aid to the aged and social security, and not one Republican has pushed these bills. The economy growth is lagging because of the present administration," Hock said.

Looking at the record, Hock said, "There were no important bills presented by the present incumbent congressman during his term in office. A Democratic congress passed Social Security in the first place by 93 per cent Democratic vote. The Republicans voted 'no' to social security."

"Make the right decision on Nov. 8," Hock said, "so that this nation will once again find its place in the sun."

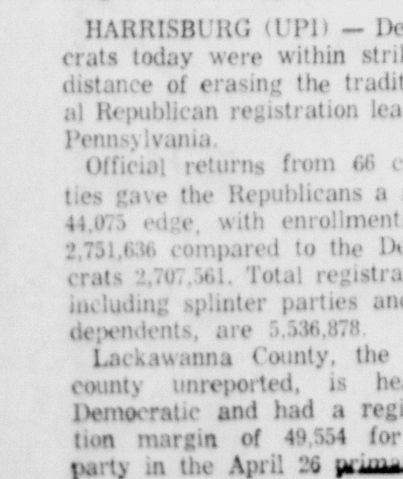

Gallagher was quoted as saying local state policies under Governor Lawrence have come up with some wonderful programs, such as building of state hospitals, improvement in mental health treatment, and a better highway code.

Paul Kenefsky, 45, of 151 Clearview Ave., Langhorne, was convicted of burglarizing a West Rockhill Township home in Bucks County Court this week.

He and Raymond Henry Levy, 28, of Philadelphia, were tried for burglarizing, last March, a sample house owned by the late Irving E. Carlson, a partner in Pennel Building and Supply Co.

Barrymore Jr. Weds Italian Film Starlet

ROME (UPI)—Bearded John Barrymore Jr., foppish in the velvet collar and white ruffles of a Beau Brummel costume, wed an Italian starlet today in a scene of which Hollywood would have been proud.

The bride, 23-year-old Gaby Palazzoli, was radiant in a gown of white satin and mink, but she was upstaged from the start by the groom.

The gaunt figure of 27-year-old Barrymore glided into the little church of St. Sebastiano like the ghost of Beau Brummel, 18th Century dandy whom John's father, the late and great John Barrymore Sr., portrayed on the American stage.

Young John wore black silk slippers, skin-tight black trousers, a ruffled white shirt with an 18th Century black cravat edged in red and a tight black coat with short tails and cuffs and high collar of black velvet.

"I'm like a 20th Century Beau Brummel," the Hollywood expatriate said as he entered the church to wait for his bride, who was late.

Barrymore had a Roman prince, a ship's captain, a dress designer and one of the opera great, Boris Chaliapin, as his formal witnesses.

Some 50 guests stood in pews covered in crimson brocade and trimmed with white carnations as Manrico Palazzoli brought his daughter down the aisle.

The father of the bride and her two brothers had been in jail with the bride and groom earlier this month for a ruckus with police. Barrymore received an eight months suspended sentence for insulting and resisting police.

way construction.

Darrah said yesterday that all he's ever been able to get from the highway department office is assurance that the township men will be among the first to know when the route is picked.

Strong Letter Sent

So Vincent H. Hartley, president of the board of commissioners, last week penned a strong letter of inquiry to the federal bureau of public roads in Washington, with copies to Sens. Joseph Clark and Hugh Scott, Cong. Willard S. Curtin and Parke Martin, secretary of the Pennsylvania highway department.

Hartley's letter hasn't been answered yet but he expresses no particular confidence that when it is it will bring the information the officials are seeking.

"Maybe it'll shake them up a little, though," the board president said.

Will Go East or North

In speculating on possible routes the new road might take through the township, Darrah yesterday offered the unofficial opinion that it must connect ultimately with some other federal highway, which would mean it will have to go either east toward Route 13 or north toward Route 1.

If the path heads north, it will mean a pretty impressive swath will have to be cut through Levittown, so that doesn't seem probable. It more likely will go east toward Route 13, a direction in which comparatively few structures stand and in which not much property would have to be condemned to make way for the highway.

Eastward Ho

Indeed, a map published some time ago by the Franklin Survey Company of Philadelphia shows the proposed route sweeping eastward from a point on Route 413 just slightly northwest of Delhaas High School, crossing and paralleling Route 13 for a short distance, and then connecting with that highway near Edgely Ave.

Maybe that's the way it will go, and maybe it isn't, but if it does go that way, it will seem a trifle odd to have learned about it from a map published by a non-official cartographer long before the highway was started, when nearly half a year after the beginning of construction, highway department officials continue to deny knowing where the road will lead.

Party On Train

Students To Honor 'Their' Conductor

Clarence Stocker, conductor for the past two years on a Jersey - Central commuter endeared himself to a dozen or more students from the West Trenton, Yardley and Langhorne areas more than he knew.

Stocker makes his last run on the train today. He's transferring to another position.

Late this afternoon on his trip out of Philadelphia he was to be honored guest at a surprise-farewell party, beginning as soon as his train left the Reading station and lasting right up until his last stop in New Jersey.

A special cake, ice cream and gifts were all planned for the warm farewell.

Karyn Weir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weir, of 304 West Fairview Ave., Langhorne Manor, was to preside over the affair. Miss Weir, whose father is a prominent New York advertising executive, is a student at the Pierce School of Business in Philadelphia.

It promised to be an interesting ride for all commuters all the way.

Lashing out at all publishers and distributors of obscene literature, Congressman Willard Curtin told the Lower Southampton Republican Club last evening "I introduced a bill during the last session of Congress making a prison sentence mandatory in cases of persons found guilty of distributing obscene literature. If re-elected, I shall push that bill into law."

Addressing an enthusiastic audience of over 100 persons, Curtin declared, "Your children and mine in Bucks County have been exposed to this vile material and I shall do everything in my power to have it stopped. To all those persons who wrote to me concerning my efforts, please be assured I shall see this legislation through."

Education Endorsement

Curtin then turned to the question of public education and pointed out that he voted in favor of the only bill which came before and was passed by the House of Representatives, providing for Federal aid to education.

In that connection the Congressman stated: "I am pleased to read you this letter I received from the Pennsylvania State Education Association, dated September 15, 1960:

"Dear Congressman: Your record in the 86th Congress in the field of public education is outstanding.

We are informing our 75,000 members of that record, and I am personally at your service for any help you feel I might render in your area.

Best wishes for a successful reelection.

Sincerely yours,
Fred P. Hare, Jr.,

at the crowd around the rear platform of his train and said, "If there are any of you in this crowd who want to do it, just try and see."

Then he quipped that Kennedy must be wrong about the American people being "hard up" — "how could they afford the eggs and tomatoes?"

He renewed his attack on Kennedy's recent recession prognosis, calling it "the most disgraceful, most irresponsible" thing Kennedy had said during the current campaign.

"The American people have faith in our economy," he said on the basis of a recent upturn in auto sales "and I wish Senator Kennedy had a little more of it."

Nixon's physician, Dr. John Lungren, said the vice president's cold was somewhat better today.

The crowd at Danville, estimated variously between 5,000 and 10,000, was decidedly friendly and there were no anti - Nixon signs that showed up so frequently in Michigan.

Balint Bengyel, of Ringoes, N. J., this week was exonerated of a charge of stealing an automobile from Middletown Township by a Bucks County Criminal Court jury.

Carl Bernatovich, 74 Indian Red Road, Levittown, was found innocent in a jury trial for assault and battery.

Paul Voebel, 30 Penn Valley Drive, Yardley, was found innocent of loitering and prowling by a jury.

Tri-F Club Gives Youngsters A New Lease On Life

The Tri-F Club of Morrisville's First Presbyterian Church has two adopted children it has never seen. They are a girl, Myrna Owen, 12, and a boy, Chen Yu Chiu, 11.

The club adopted the pair through the Christian Children's Fund, Inc., a Richmond, Va., charity that cares for about 32,000 children in orphanages and child centers throughout the world.

The 32,000 that the fund cares for is a passel of kids, but more than a little short of what needs to be done. Pointing out that one out of every two kids go to bed hungry every night all over the globe, the fund seeks support throughout the country and tends to become more than a little effusive for the help it receives.

$10 a Month
It takes just $10 a month to care for one child.

Besides thanks for the cash, the fund supplies its members with information about those children whose support individual donors are aiding.

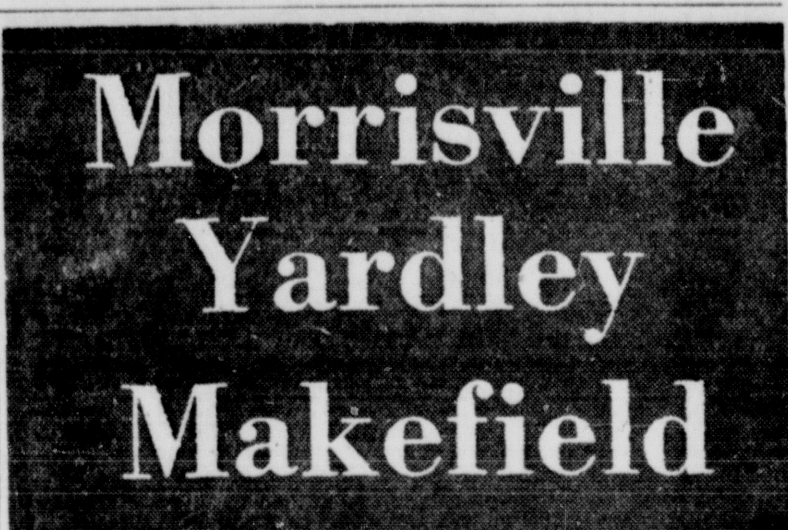

Myrna Owen is a full-blooded

Sioux who, as a result of the Tri-F Club's help, is attending the Wahpeton Indian School. Pointing out that reservation life for many Indians is hard, isolated, monotonous and dreary, the fund, through the school, tries to provide a change for the 388 children being trained there.

Math And Dancing

Myrna is listed as being a quiet, cooperative, intelligent girl whose ambition is to be a teacher. Her favorite subject is mathematics, her favorite pastime Indian dancing.

Her health, while reported as good now, was a major rehabilitation project when she first came to the school. She was born into a family that subsisted on the fathers' part time jobs on the reservation. When her mother died her father's ambition waned. She was sent to live with her grandparents who were so poor that sharing what they had with the girl meant all went hungry.

That's when Myrna was brought to the Wahpeton school.

The Other Side

Chen Yu Chiu lives on the other side of the world, one of the millions who have crowded into Hong Kong, squeezed beneath the eking's a living hawking fruit on the city's streets. His father is dead.

Hong Kong is described as a lovely, beautiful city, surrounded by water and mountains, a shopper's paradise, an art collector's heaven. It also contains as much human misery per square foot as any city on earth.

Full Streets

According to the fund's letter, Hong Kong's streets are filled with dirty, tattered and half naked waifs with ugly sores on their heads and thin, big bellied bodies. Chen Yu Chiu was one of these. He is also deaf.

The $10 that the Tri-F Club forwards to the fund every month has enabled Chen to get the new lease on a life he must be taught to cope with and before he can begin to enjoy it.

Boys and girls at the school are given a priceless vocational training in ivory and wood carving, copper engraving, commercial drawing, embroidery, sewing, doll and model making and domestic science. Hobbies in the United States, these abilities are livelihoods in Hong Kong. Chen is in the second grade, even though he is 11 years old. He has plenty of courage, which is the English translation of his name.

Under The Curtain

The fund describes his family as being "desperately poor" before the influx of refugees from behind the bamboo curtain. After 3,000,000 persons crowded into a British colony to escape the Red menace, their situation became worse.

After the family became even more than "desperately" poor, the boy's father died. Providing food became impossible and, after going hungry for a while, Chen was brought to the Center for the Deaf.

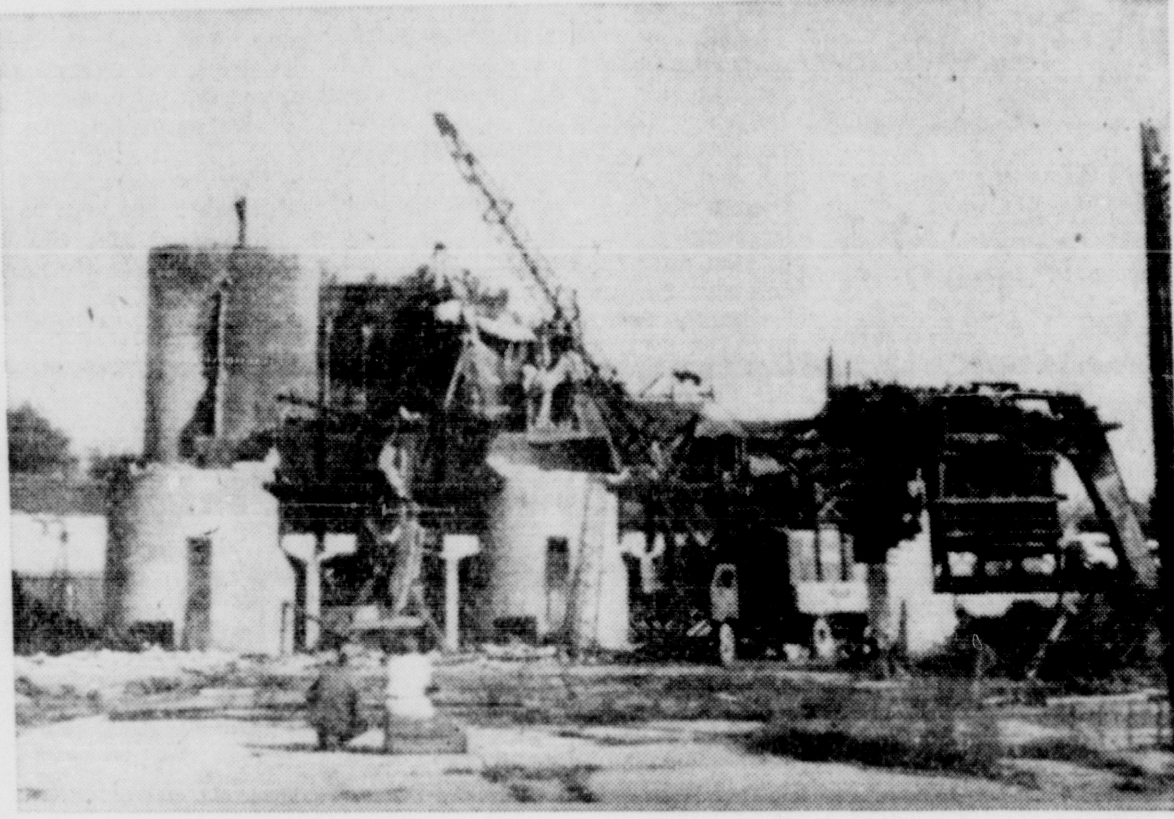

The work of the Christian Children's Fund has just started, a letter from the organization suggests. It is searching for more "parents." It costs almost as much to care for one child as an average smoker spends on tobacco each year, and much less than what little Johnny is given to spend at Saturday matinees.

A Morrisville Landmark Goes Back To Dust

Tattersall's Coal Yard, Morrisville, condemned this year by Building Inspector Ernest L. Conklin, as it appeared just after demolition work had begun. Closed for some time, parts of the roof on the silos had fallen in even before condemnation.

The wrecking job is just about half-way finished here. The yard and its coal storage bins had been condemned because they posed a danger to persons, especially children, and to the cars parked underneath the silos. Railroad tracks over the Pennsylvania Canal were removed also.

The last few remnants of the Morrisville landmark are being hauled away here. The job was finished during this week. No plans as to future use of the land have yet been announced. (Photos by Ernest Conklin)

Do-It-Yourself Headquarters Open At Rednor And Kline Co. Grounds

gressman Willard S. Curtin, cutting the ribbon; Falls Township supervisor Ed Howley; Herbert Rednor, secretary; Herbert Margerum, Jr., president of the Morrisville Bank; and Harry Kline, treasurer. (Courier-Times Photo)

Rednor and Kline, in business since 1914 when horse-drawn barges were floated down the Pennsylvania Canal to deposit coal and ice in their Morrisville yards, opened a new building yesterday.

The new store is a complete do-it-yourself haven and supply house for contractors.

The firm opened its pre-World War I site on ground now occupied by the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission. The commission bought the original property in 1932.

A short while later, the Pennsylvania Railroad sold the firm 31 acres alongside an 1,100 foot spur track just off Route 1, where yesterday company, Morrisville and Falls Township officials watched Congressman Willard S. Curtin cut the ribbon to open their newest addition.

Attending the opening ceremonies were firm officials Jacob Rednor, vice president; Eugene Kline, president; Herbert Rednor, secretary; Harry Kline, treasurer. Also, Morrisville Burgess Harry Simpson, Falls Township Supervisor Ed Howley and Falls Township Manager Robert Erwin.

Those taking the trip will see the William Bendix musical "Take Me Along" and the show at Radio City Music Hall.

Morrisville Man Hurt

A Morrisville man was injured yesterday when the car he was driving crashed into a concrete culvert on West Trenton Ave. near Alden Ave., Falls Township, police said.

Police said the injured man is Leroy Greenlee, 28, of 1 Springdale Terrace, who was taken to Mercer Hospital by the Delaware Valley Rescue Squad where he was treated for cuts and admitted for observation. The accident occurred at 6 p.m.

League Plans Hearing On River Problem

As long as water comes when they turn the spigot, most citizens in the Delaware River service area fail to realize that a critical water supply problem has been brewing for years, says James Kerney, Jr.

Kerney will address the open meeting on proposals for management of the river's waters Tuesday Nov. 15 in Pennsbury High School auditorium, Lower Jakefield.

The meeting will be sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Yardley - Morrisville and the Levittown league.

As executive vice - president of the Water Research Foundation for the Delaware River Basin, Kerney was instrumental last year in forming the Water Resources Association to carry responsible information about the critical situation to the public. Its membership now includes 130 non-profit organizations and several hundred conservation-minded individuals. President is Charles Bensinger of the Pocono Mountain Chamber of Commerce.

"Unless something is soon done, to provide adequate control of its natural water resources, the Delaware River Basin eventually will strangle in its own water problem," the association declares. "For one thing, we allow 55 to 60 per cent of the rainfall to run off, unused, to the Atlantic Ocean."

Col. T. H. Setcliffe, who has headed the U.S. Army Engineers three-year survey will precede Kerney on the program for the open meeting, showing pictures of proposed types of dams and reservoirs at proposed locations on the Delaware and its tributaries. His talk will explain how the Engineers expect their plan to improve and increase the flow of water during the next 50 years. Based on current census figures and population trends, there will be twice as many people in the Delaware River service area in 50 years. The U.S. Office of Business and Economics projects a quadrupling of industrial production and total demand for water by that time.

Pennsbury Conducting Survey Of Graduates

One of the important guidance services offered by Pennsbury High School is a continuous follow-up of its graduates.

Within the next week the graduates of 1956, 1958, and 1960 will receive their survey questionnaires in the mail. Alpheus Keller, chairman of the follow-up study, hopes to have a complete early return of these questionnaires.

The survey is used by faculty members to continue to provide the kinds of education experiences — class and extra-curricular — which will most benefit the present and future students.

Car Rams Abutment, Found Abandoned

A car which ran into a bridge abutment on Dunksferry Road in Bensalem Township was found abandoned last night by police.

A check on the car's registration plates identified the owner as Bronislaw Boris, 2587 Mechanicsville Road, police said.

As of this morning, police had been unable to determine who was driving the auto. Boris was not at home when police tried to contact him, an officer said.

The undercarriage of the auto was damaged slightly, police said.

Dad Hangs Pets To Teach Children To Obey

Landrum was arrested on the complaint of neighbors who saw the pets hanging in his home.

Monitor Chairman Ordered Removed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Appeals today ordered the removal of the chairman of the board of monitors set up to keep tabs on the Teamsters Union.

It was the second time that the higher court has vacated the appointment of former FBI agent Terrance McShane.

The union and its president James R. Hoffa have strongly opposed McShane's nomination, claiming he is prejudiced against them and therefore should be disqualified. Hoffa and the union have noted McShane took part in the FBI investigation of charges of alleged wire tapping by Hoffa and testified against him. Hoffa was acquitted of the charges.

Hoffa had made the same objections to the previous board chairman, Martin F. O'Donoghue. O'Donoghue maintained that the union could not be cleaned up until Hoffa was removed from office. O'Donoghue resigned last spring.

McShane, nominated by some of the dissident Teamsters who first initiated the court action nearly three years ago, was appointed chairman on April 1 by Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts. Six weeks later the higher court removed him on a technicality.

The court later told Letts to reconsider his plan to re-appoint McShane on the basis of charges that he had threatened two union members. Letts did so, again overruled objections from Hoffa and the union, and swore in McShane on Sept. 26.

The appeals court, in its 2-1 decision said McShane was not legally nominated because the nomination was not made jointly by both sides as required by a consent decree. The court added that it took its action "without in any way questioning the integrity or the ability of Mr. McShane."

But it said Hoffa and the union could reasonably object to his appointment because of his prior activities in connection with the case.

Independent Union Signs GE Contract

NEW YORK (UPI) — The independent United Electrical Workers Union (UE) has agreed to a new contract with the General Electric Co. (GE) which substantially is the same as one which ended a 22-day nationwide strike against GE by the International Union of Electrical Workers last Saturday.

The new three year contract, covering some 10,000 workers, calls for a three per cent pay boost effective last Monday and another three per cent hike in April, 1962.

In addition, the contract agreement reached Thursday provides for an eighth paid holiday and a fourth week of vacation after 25 years.

Exact comparison with the IUE contract is difficult because the agreement between the IUE and GE includes three separate options which can be variously applied to different locals of the 70,000 workers represented by the IUE in some 55 cities.

Some locals may choose the identical option picked by the UE, and others possibly will pick a different option which grants three per cent now and another four per cent in 18 months, without the extra holiday and fourth week of vacation.
